第四部分 写作（共两节，满分 40 分）

第一节（满分 15 分）

Possible version (79 words)

Last Saturday, I delighted in a school-organized vegetable-planting event—an enriching experience worth sharing.

Upon reaching the sun-kissed farmland, we eagerly grabbed shovels, breaking the earth with energy before nestling tender seedlings into orderly beds. With gentle hands, we blanketed their roots in soil and showered them with hopeful water.

This immersive labor taught me the beauty of hands-on learning. I can't wait for the next chance to roll up my sleeves and get my hands dirty again!

第二节（满分 25 分）

Possible version (165 words)

My hands froze. I stared at the screen, not sure whether to be angry or disappointed — maybe both. After everything we'd done together, how could he just leave? The next morning, I carried our project to school alone, stomach tight with nerves. I stood by our model, trying to sound confident while explaining the design to the judges. To my surprise, we won. In the end, the principal walked towards me with a first prize medal in hand and a smile on his face. (82 words)

Taking the gold medal from the principal, I instantly realized Jake's original intention. He hadn't merely forgotten the science fair. He deliberately stepped back, allowing me to take center stage and shine brightly so that I could overcome my self-doubt speaking in public. Then I felt a mix of gratitude and admiration for him. Not only was our friendship about me keeping him on track, but also about us supporting each other in different ways. Jake's brilliance and my reliability were a perfect team, and I realized that true friendship is about selflessness and mutual understanding. (83 words)

听力材料：*(Text 1)

W: Oh, it tastes terrible. I wish we had gone somewhere else.

M: I'm not surprised. I found lots of bad reviews online. But we came here because you said you wanted to try the steak.

(Text 2)

W: Where have you been, Tom?

M: I've just got back from a meeting in Manchester. My mum lives there so I spent a few days with her after the conference.

(Text 3)

W: Hi, you're late for work today.

M: Yeah, my car is at the repair shop. I was on my way to the subway station when I saw a bus pull up. It took me to the company instead.

(Text 4)

W: An AI company is holding a science competition to support its efforts to educate the nation's youth.

M: Who is allowed to take part?

W: It's open to college students from all over the country.

(Text 5)

W: Did you see the information about your basketball lessons, James?

M: Yeah — thanks for booking those, Mum. I have some shorts, but they're a bit tight. Can you get me some new pairs?

W: Yes, I'll do that tomorrow.

(Text 6)

M: Where will your class go for a field trip this year?

W: We'll go to a farm to gather strawberries.

M: That sounds interesting. Can students eat the strawberries that they pick?

W: Yes. Each student can pick up to one kilo of strawberries. They can eat them on the farm or take them home.

M: I'm sure the students will love this trip. So how much does it cost per student?

W: Twenty dollars.

M: So, altogether your class will pay four hundred dollars for it.

W: Right.

(Text 7)

M: Emma, great to see you! How are things going?

W: I'm still working for that magazine I told you about. There are lots of meetings and deadlines for different articles. This is my only free evening this week.

M: Why's that?

W: I've started doing loads of evening courses after work. Last night, I did creative writing. It sounds fun, but actually, it's quite challenging. We have to write something in class every week. Yesterday, I had to imagine I was an animal and write a story about a typical day.

M: What else are you doing?

W: On Mondays, I do a photography course. I got a digital camera for my birthday and there are lots of things I don't know how to do. I'm also taking a computer course.

M: You are so busy.

W: Yes, I am, but being out after work helps me relax.

(Text 8)

W: So, what is it like going back to Budapest?

M: Well, a lot of things have changed. There are so many tourists and foreigners now. It used to be unusual to hear people speaking English or French on the streets, but now you hear them everywhere. That is the biggest difference.

W: And what about prices?

M: Everything is more expensive. The thing I've noticed particularly is transport. It used to be incredibly reliable and cheap. It's still as reliable as before, but the cost has significantly increased. Taxis are terribly expensive now. I took a taxi and the cost was a real shock!

W: Are there any other changes you've noticed when walking around the streets?

M: People look better dressed, because the shops are better, I suppose ... Oh, there are more cars on the roads, smarter and more modern. That does give the place a different atmosphere.

(Text 9)

W: Liam, you've performed Mozart's opera—The Magic Flute, many times. Why do you plan to continue performing it?

M: Initially, I saw The Magic Flute as something that helped me grow with each performance. However, after about 10 performances, I began to tire of it. But when my young daughter saw The Magic Flute for the first time, her excited expression renewed my enthusiasm for this Mozart masterpiece.

W: Your voice is growing, and you seem ready for bigger roles.

M: My manager, Bill, has offered me more significant and challenging roles, but I'm in no rush. I want to focus on improving my singing techniques, performance skills, and musical understanding before taking on those roles.

W: How does your family support you?

M: Honestly, my wife Jane is the most talented in my family. She majored in guitar and studied voice at the University of Michigan. Over the years, she has been giving lessons in voice and guitar while taking care of our daughter.

(Text 10)

M: My name's George Ryan and I work as a park ranger, someone who's responsible for looking after national parks in America. The first park ever set up was Yellowstone National Park, in 1872. Others include Capitol Reef National Park, which I'd love to work in one day, and the famous Rocky Mountain National Park, where I've worked since graduation. People often ask me what qualifications are needed for my job. Well, my workmates have degrees in natural sciences or in something more specialised like forestry. At university, I got a degree in environmental studies. One of my daily tasks is to ensure the wildlife is safe. It can be dangerous. There is the possibility of encountering a mountain lion or stepping on a poisonous snake. So I have to get ready for any situation I may find myself in, which is the essential qualification for my job. In recent years, we've taken a number of measures to improve the park. Last year, there was a project that involved planting trees and putting up signs that lead visitors to the less well-known attractions. Right now, I'm trying to improve the paths in poor condition. It's physically demanding and tiring work.
