M: Hello. International Friends Club. Can I help you?

W: Oh, hello. I read about your club in the paper today and I thought I'd phone to find out a bit more.

M: Yes, certainly. Well, we are a sort of social club for people from different countries. It's quite a new club—we have about 50 members at the moment, but we are growing all the time.

W: That sounds interesting. I'm British actually, and I came to Washington about three months ago. I'm looking for ways to meet people. Er, what kinds of events do you organize?

M: Well, we have social get-togethers, and sports events, and we also have language evenings.

W: Could you tell me something about the language evenings?

M: Yes. Every day except Thursday we have a language evening. People can come and practice their languages—you know, over a drink or something. We have different languages on different evenings. Monday—Spanish; Tuesday—Italian; Wednesday—German; and Friday—French. On Thursday we usually have a meal in a restaurant for anyone who wants to come.

W: Well, that sounds great. I really need to practice my French.

M: OK. Well, if you can just give me your name and address, I'll send you the form and some more information. If you join now, you can have the first month free.

As I prepare to celebrate Women's Day with a speech, Curie's achievements give me confidence. We've discussed her in class, but her story bears repeating. Curie, a pioneer woman, won two Nobel Prizes for her groundbreaking work in the early 1900s. She believed in her capacity to revolutionize science. Her solid determination drove her to labor in labs, uncovering new elements and laying the groundwork for nuclear physics and cancer therapies.

Curie's judgment and attitude are what I admire most. She showed us that to make a difference in the world, we must first become our best selves.

Finally, I told Frank that I wanted to join his project. He was thrilled and welcomed me with open arms. Together, we dove into the project, combining our strengths and ideas. The project was a success. At the end of the semester, Frank was invited to speak at a school event, where he spoke about the importance of having dreams and the support of people like our professor. "We all have challenges," he said in the speech, "but it's how we face them that defines us." His inspiring words resonated with everyone present.

Frank's heartfelt speech encouraged me to start my own project. I found myself reflecting on his words and my own passion for robotics. I had always been afraid to start my own project, but Frank's resolution and the professor's support gave me the courage to take that step. Under the professor's guidance, I fully applied my robotics skills to my project, creating something unique. Frank's efforts reminded me, "With determination and support, anything is possible." His courage inspired me to step out of my comfort zone and turn our passions into a collaborative success.
